Generation of Sturdy Local Americans Has Seen

FLOOD TIME, 1953. The Androscoggin Valley at Livermore Falls. From "West Side" one overlooks the dam, a section of the International Paper Company's lower mill yard, the familiar pulp pile; on the brow of the hill, planted firmly, stands Livermore Falls High School.

Geographers tell us to "look to the environment," if we wish to explain a people. Foremost among the nations of the world stands the United States. In Northern New England, occupying a small section of Western Maine, Livermore Falls is located. A very typical enterprising American community, its resources have been highly developed by an energetic citizenry. Realizing that the youth of our land constituted our country's greatest asset, the earliest local settlers planned, through education, to bring into action the highest abilities of man, the mental and intellectual.

In preparation for a greater America, they acted. So we, today, meet at L.F.H.S., enrolled as students and as junior citizens. We take pride in our school, our community, our state and our nation. In club and class committees we take part in school government. Here we learn resourcefulness and initiative. We work together, making friends in the give-and-take of student life. We learn new arts and skills. In classroom, lab, and library we have contact with wiser minds that initiate us into the world's large store of wisdom. They teach us that truth, only, makes men free, and that it should be pursued for its own sake. On athletic field and drill ground we learn self control, discipline, and leadership. From great books and living examples we become involuntary receivers and transmitters of spiritual and moral values. After club life and sports are long forgotten, we shall be proud of having been a part of a truly democratic way of life — the American way of life — and of having contributed to that figure of heroic stature, the Good American Citizen.

One Must Know Such Words as Loyalty, Truth, Courage,

PROMENADE AFTER LUNCH at the cafeteria. Such scenes, typical of a school day, show the student body learning to live with others, to discriminate between persons and ideas, to develop more adult standards of values.

A PAUSE TO CHAT IN THE LOBBY after school. Lois Chicoine and Quirino Lucarelli discuss the day's events.

The good American citizen doesn't talk against his neighbors or gossip in the streets, he doesn't pry into the private affairs of others. He believes that if he talks about people, he should say something good about them. He must, therefore, see some good in all people. His criticism is always constructive, never bitter or jealous. A democratic citizen tries to "get ahead", but he never schemes to do it unfairly. He is honest; he will not cheat the customer but will tell the truth about what he has to sell. He knows that some people are "higher" or more gifted than himself, but he cultivates all his own talents without envy of others, for he is not like the little boy who "won't play unless he can be Roy Rogers".

For It Is A Duty to Battle Ignorance and Wickedness

THE BUSY WORKADAY WORLD at L.F.H.S. moves with the passing bell. Soon to become citizens of a larger community, they prepare with vast self-confidence to face the duties, the joys, and tragedies that will confront them in a lifetime of living with others.

A good citizen is a well informed citizen, as energetic as the cheerleaders who cannot recognize frustration. He knows his country's past, and he appreciates what his forebears have done for him. He learns to recognize factual reporting in political and economic matters. He listens to news commentators and reads opinions from many sources, so that he may make reasonable decisions. Never becoming cynical, the good American trains himself to understand that there are two sides to a story; while in school he gets the habit of listening to every viewpoint in the never-ending search for truth.

The Good American Listens to Every Viewpoint in the

He must deserve the faith which his government places in him. Whenever a new problem is noted, he sponsors a committee to study the problem and, first being sure of getting all the facts, he seeks a wise and fair solution. To do all these things, a good citizen knows he needs a good education, and he realizes that he is never too old to learn. Confident in himself, our good American walks with all the dignity and self-respect possible in our wonderful America.

We are, first of all, citizens in the home where we learn to take responsibilities and to respect the rights of others. The wise discipline of the fine home develops cooperation, reliability, friendliness, courtesy, and respect for authority. As good home-citizens we carry on friendly conversation at the dinner table, avoiding the childish atmosphere of strife, for in this way we gain confidence in ourselves as personalities. We can do the dishes, clean our rooms, help with the baby, and the cooking — in general, lend a hand to our often harried parents. We should plan to spend a generous amount of time just associating with the family and being our parents' friends, so that Father may hear John's speech on the Constitution or chuckle over Bob's latest joke.

Future Homemakers of America specialize in "good works". Here, in upper picture, Louise Castonguay, Etta King and Lois Chicoine are preparing bandage material for the local drive of the American Cancer Society. After being sterilized, the material is used to wrap bandages for cancer patients. Below, Georgia Lamb and Corilla Ouellette sponsored a collection in American history classes to purchase Easter seals for crippled children. Another history group collected among themselves a fund for UNICEF, as a constructive way of celebrating Halloween.

He Welcomes Newcomers and Cares for the Needy

At midyear when Marie Black and Heather Furlong (both standing) transferred to L.F.H.S., they were introduced to teachers and piloted to different classes by (seated) Margaret Eastman and Meredith McClure who welcomed them as classmates.

After Ronald Newcomb's serious knee injury during the football season, and between periods of hospitalization, he had many cards, gifts, and calls from good friends. Here Conrad Ouellette, Maynard Veinotte, Ronald and Donald Newcomb enjoy the bedside call.

He Visits the Sick and is Helpful in the Home;

Often harried parents appreciate children with that dependable sense of responsibility. Donning an apron, Larry Bryant "makes with the dishes" to help out in a worker shortage. Marlene, also, gives first aid in the kitchen.

He knows that he has rights which other peoples cannot claim, therefore he doesn't "grouch" when the taxes are due, but he sits down to think how public money can be spent wisely, without waste; as a voter he knows this is his duty and responsibility, so that we may better our wonderful standard of living. The good citizen thinks from a group point of view, not just for himself. He knows that in a greater America he must better things for everyone because the welfare of one depends on the welfare of all, and the welfare of all depends on the welfare of one.

Kindly, reflective, intelligent members of our student body may be listening to an outside speaker who brings them expert and specialized information about current problems of the world they live in.

Pays Taxes Cheerfully; Realizes All Humanity Needs

Ronald Farrington, Edmund Henry, and Llewellyn Lyman study the income tax forms in order to compute examples presented in Business Training Course.

Freshman member of the Student Council, Margaret Eastman, attended with her group the pre-town meeting discussion and lectures in the Municipal Building to get information concerning fluoridation of local drinking water.

He votes because his father and his father's father fought for freedom. He learns the history of democracy from its very beginning in order to understand the struggle that is still going on to obtain it. Because the government is everyone's business, he is interested in schools, clinics, pensions, parks, and in bringing financial and medical help to tornado and flood victims. He knows that the taxes he pays give him conveniences not dreamed of years ago, that taxes protect him in times of crisis, and that our government shields us from war, famine and pestilence.

Schools, Clinics, Pensions, Public Health Service.

Along with all other members of the freshman class Tommy Conley had the privilege of school physical examination. Dr. Charles Eastman is giving this oral examination as Public Health Nurse, Mrs. Elaine Murray, stands by.

Both Betty and her adviser, Mrs. Ambrose attended the third National F.H.A. Convention at Columbus, Ohio, for four days in July, 1953. Betty was one of the official voting delegates from Maine, and gave the invocation at the second General Assembly before an audience of two thousand students and their advisers. She took part in the initiation of state presidents and in the group discussion, "Building Better Homes".

State President of Future Home-Makers of America, Betty Demont, and her adviser, Mrs. Phyllis Ambrose.

The Good American Home Has A High Standard

Demonstrating future home-maker arts, Betty Demont and Betty Botka learn fundamentals of furniture repair in Home Improvement Class. Wielding hammer and screw driver, the girls restore to attractive modernity a worn piece of furniture.

Buying for the home is today largely in the hands of women, merchandising experts tell us. Consumer's Economics Course is designed to increase the buyer's efficiency, to teach him what makes an article good, and what makes it bad for his purposes. Mr. Frank Ouellette is explaining to Economics students, Lois Chicoine and Marie Tardif, the special characteristics of stuffing and covering materials used for upholstering furniture.

of Values and Protects From Moral Faults.

Protecting our wonderful American standard of living is a "must" if democracy is to survive. The art and science of purchasing perishable foods has been studied in Consumer's Economics classes. Marie Tardif, Ellen Cummings, and Lois Chicoine (left to right) are taking a look at the fruit and vegetable counter. Is the grapefruit thin skinned? Are those the best potatoes for French fries? Perhaps the cauliflower isn't in season. Is it unduly expensive for the working family's budget? The trained modern consumer does not forget that a balanced diet is essential to maintain health and save hospital and doctor's bills.

Truly the Good American Citizen is

Hours of observation duty at the local post have been chalked up by L.F.H.S. students. Percy Perkins, getting the data sheets up to date, and Conrad Ouellette (with the binoculars) scan the skies and report, as necessary, to the central station.

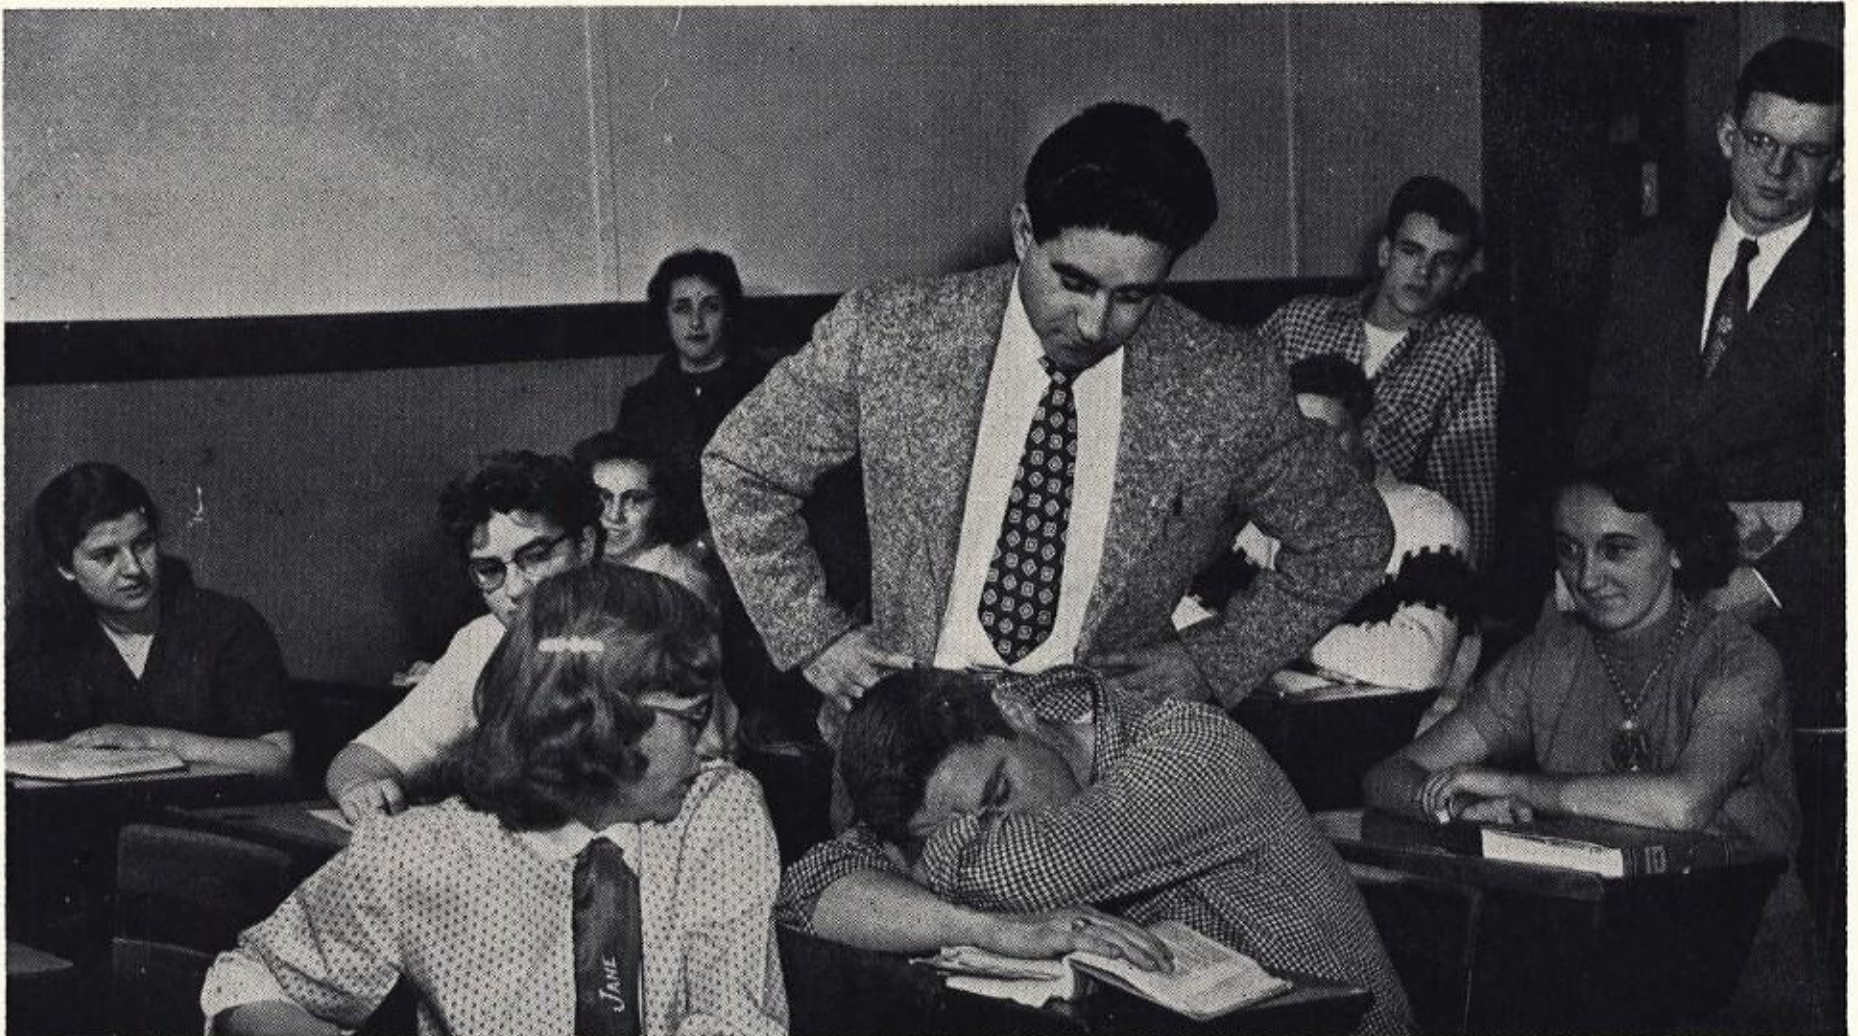

Ever Alert, as He Listens to All Sides of A Story.

Like the Minute Man, ever alert, the good citizen must not go to sleep on the job. To preserve the good things for which so many have fought and died, demands a courage as high and determined as that of the battlefield. On this daily battlefield the good citizen learns to detect and scorn false propaganda, so that his country may not be injured by unscrupulous persons. Every citizen should take an active part in town affairs, because the town is the government nearest him, and such service prepares him for participating in the national and world communities.

Keeping up with the Times on both foreign and home levels makes Heather Furlong a busy reader for current events class.

Truly the Good Citizen is "ever alert". The consternation of the instructor, Mr. Puia, and the horrified expressions of student onlookers should rouse the sleeper to be "up and onward".

If He Is A Good Worker and Neighbor in Community

In the community the good American helps out with that party the neighbors are planning for the kids on Christmas; the good American is the first to dig into his pocket for the Polio Drive and to sign as a blood donor. He helps his neighbor out of the snow drift in the winter; he cares for the sick and the poor everywhere; he believes in God. The good home (and several Bibles may be seen in such a place) protects the young against moral faults as well as physical injury. It develops a high standard of values for all members of the household.

Most bemedalled Girl Scout in town, Frances Darey (left) illustrates all the Scout traditions of a "good deed a day". Our high school 4-H students win many honors and trips. Richard Barker (left) was 1953 state finalist in the vegetable garden contest, earning a trip to the National 4-H Congress as a result. He has recently been named County 4-H President. Robert Barker won state honors in 1953 (second place in the dairy contest). Joann Quirion, recently returned from Orono as her club's chosen delegate, listens with great interest to accounts of events on the state and national levels. Joann earned county honors in the frozen food contest.

He Often Finds That Christmas Is Every Day

These members of the Commercial Club were active at Christmas in playing Santa Claus to a needy family in the vicinity. Standing, Marlene Simoneau and Connie Meserve watch Jenille Henry wrap in gay paper a gift for one of the children. Corinne Desjardins is seated on the floor. Club members brought gifts of clothing, home canned fruits and vegetables, candy, toys and foods of all kinds, and packed several large containers for the family. Certainly the girls' cheerful expressions prove the Scriptural truth, "Give and ye shall receive".

Young America, Hope of A World in Tears, Builder

The Good American must be a good world citizen also. If he can understand better the problems of other peoples he can really appreciate our own democracy and the way of life which all nations may yet reach. He must try to understand, respect, and have a warm feeling for people who are different, so that his country can help to build a world where peace among men will really prevail. In this responsibility for world understanding, the good citizen must learn not to fear people who are different.

After returning from her U.N. trip Ruth Whitney said, "This trip was an education and an inspiration to me. I was a most lucky girl to be chosen for the Pilgrimage. While at the U.N. our group attended the daily assemblies at various Council chambers and listened to discussions of the day. We might hear a South African witness, testifying in person and pleading the cause of his people whose land had been stolen. I met boys and girls from all parts of North America. Supplied with a most generous purse of spending money by the local lodges, I could certainly see the 'Big Town' in a deluxe fashion."

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wright, representatives of the local I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Lodges, look over a book of UN tour data with Ruth Whitney, the L.F.H.S. representative of their lodges. Ruth was privileged to be the local delegate, after being chosen in a speaking contest before lodge members.

Ruth points out in her scrapbook the delightful highlights of her Pilgrimage, as depicted through pictures, clippings, and souvenirs. Her classmates, Corilla Ouellette and Glennis Martin, are interested observers.

of A Magnificent Republic of Many Men and Creeds,

*This is the land where hate should die —
No feuds of faith, no spleen of race,
No darkly brooding fear should try
Beneath our flag to find a place.
Lo! every people here has sent
Its sons to answer freedom's call;
Their lifeblood is the strong cement
That builds and binds the nation's wall.
Dennis A. McCarthy*

AMERICANS ALL. Have you ever asked yourself how many brothers and sisters you have? The right answer is "about one hundred and sixty million." It has been said that one man alone could not build a city. So, at L.F.H.S. we find that divinely planned diversity: Swedish, Hungarian, Scottish-Canadian - Yankee, Lithuanian - Spanish, Welsh-English, German-Hebrew, Czech-French, French, Italian, Italian-French, Polish-French, American Indian-French-Yankee, Irish, French-Irish, Canadian German, Scottish-French-Yankee, Finnish-Yankee, Polish, German, Polish-German. Our student group represents these peoples and many others.

Must Make Maximum Use of Mental Capacities and Europe, Mother of Nations, and a continent in turmoil has a great stake in the Atlantic Community. What have war and scorched earth policy done to this erstwhile leader? Home of an energetic and resourceful people, America was a prime mover in this treaty group. A World Geography class tries to find answers to important questions: When will peace, law and order prevail in that troubled region? When will the farms yield necessary food for the people? When can European resources be put to their best peace time uses? Joan Yeaton, Robert Henry, William Binette, and Richard Mercier ponder these questions and seek answers.

With catapult force man's horizon is widening in our century. Devices of modern communication, both present-day and about-to-be, transform the lives of today's students. Enriching their understanding of the present, and learning the pitfalls that betrayed earlier civilizations are (left to right): Everett Sanborn, Robert Eames and Starr Nelke. They are scanning magazines "Life" and "National Geographic" (history series). Reference books available to the class include "Prince of Egypt," "King Arthur Stories," "Beowulf," "Day in Old Athens," "Life on a Medieval Barony," "Master of the Guild," "Tamer of Herds," "Victor of Salamis," "Quo Vadis," "The Wonder Stick," and "On Land and Sea with Caesar".

Stress Traditional Values in Wide, Well Chosen Reading

Quickly, water, smelling salts, vinegar! What a fall! Papa came near getting killed. Was it the spurs that caused the trouble, or was the animal merely skittish (as Perrichon suggests)? Fie, Fie, on the father of a family! Acting in this French classic, an immortal comedy of bourgeois life are (left to right): Frances Darey, Mme. Perrichon; Conrad Ouellette, M. Perrichon; Richard Pakulski, Daniel; Richard Rhodenizer, Innkeeper; Diane Harlow, Henriette; Gerald Deshaies, Armand.

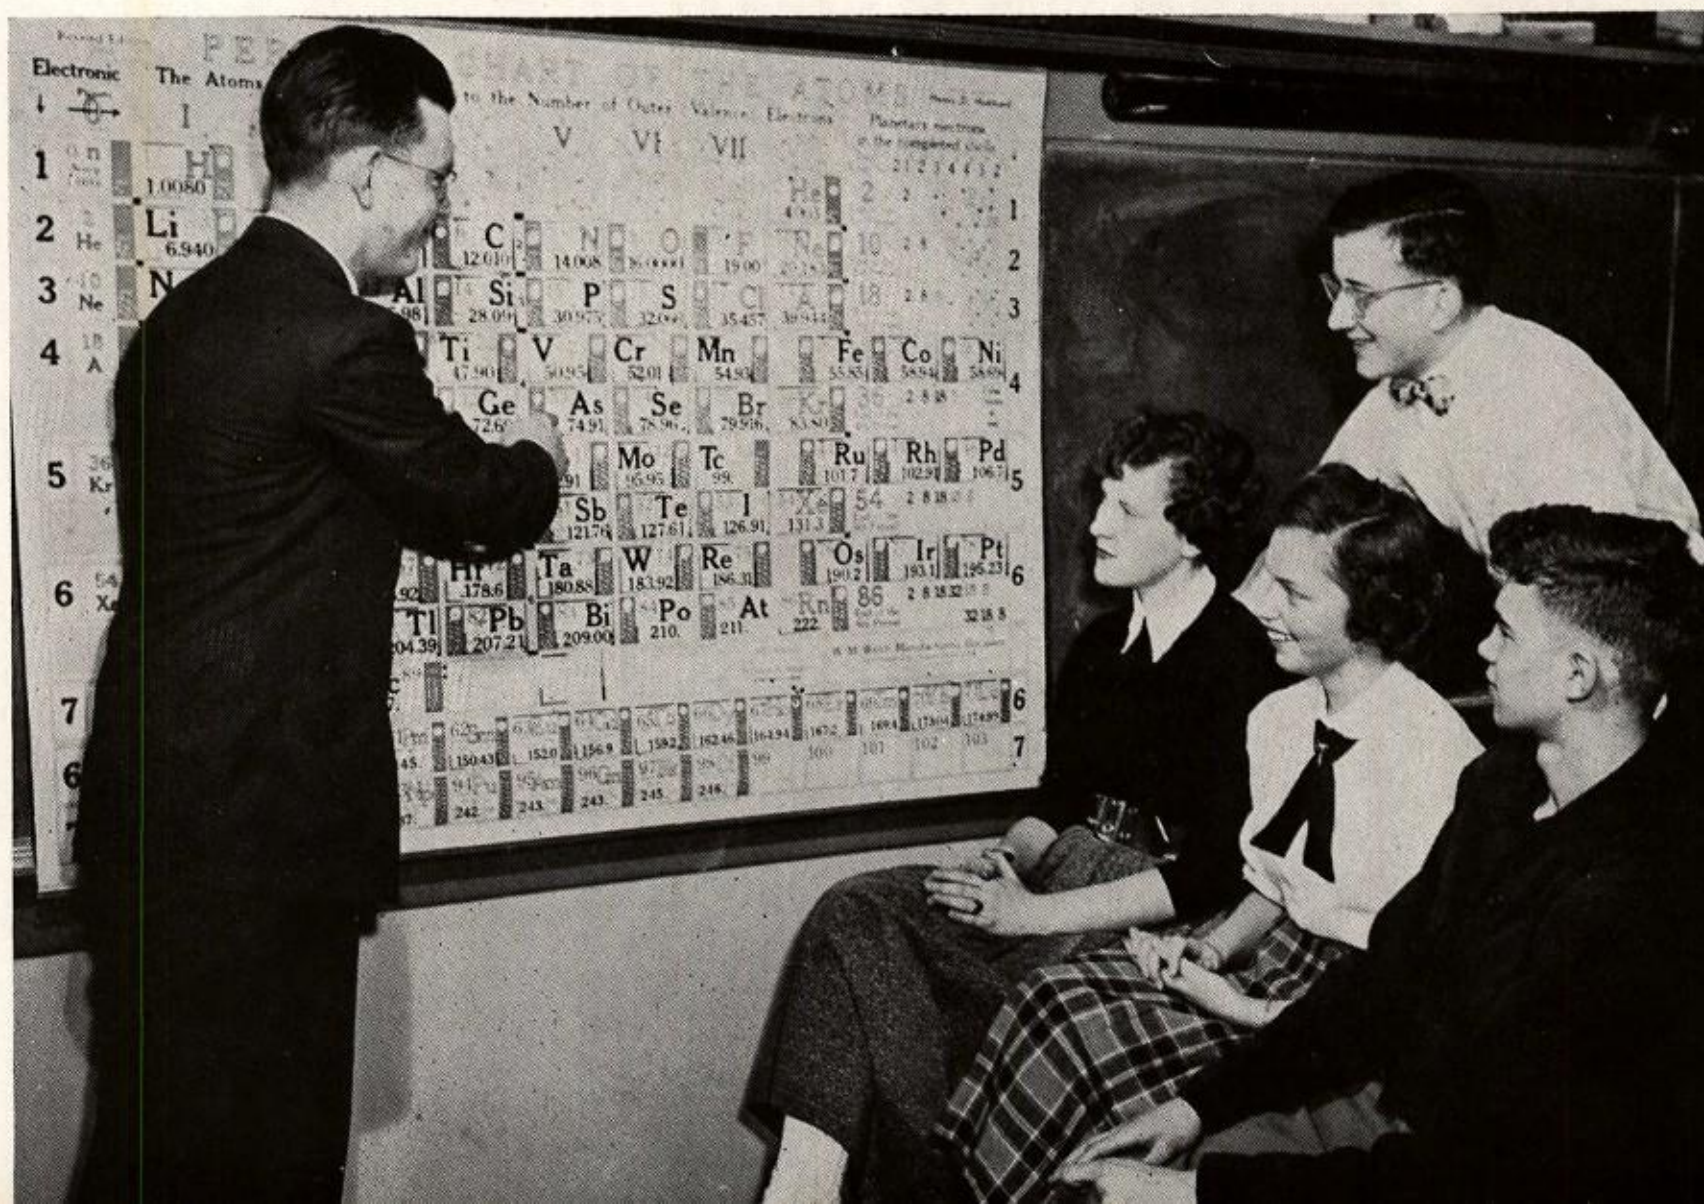

Use Reflective Thinking and Scientific Method;

THE BULLETIN BOARD. Teaching "The Lost Explorer" is accomplished with greater student understanding when illustrative maps are used. Roger Crosson (in Mrs. Griffin's English class) is pointing out Zanzibar and the Malagarazi River to Barbara Gray and Billy Welch. Pictures of African scenes also develop the theme of the story realistically.

WANT SOME ARSENIC, SOMEONE? Lester Dow points out atomic numbers on the Periodic Chart to (seated) Lorine Beaulieu, Marie Tardif, Harry Maxwell, and (standing) Richard Pakulski. The students can see that the study of chemistry is greatly simplified by use of the chart. Arsenic (atomic number 33) has, for instance, 33 protons in its nucleus. Its position (in horizontal period 4) shows that there are 4 orbits around the nucleus; since arsenic is in vertical group V, it has five electrons in its outer orbit.

Think About Meaning of Poetry, Patriotism, Music.

HIGH CIVILIZATION is truly marked by its development of the arts, and of these arts perhaps music is the foremost. Only a highly intelligent public can appreciate, and be spiritually moved by the classical masterpieces. In playing position this string section of the orchestra rehearses a musical number. Left to right: Joann Quirrion, Frances Darey, Marcia Dow, Joy Chicoine and Marilyn Conant.

Skilled Workers Educate Themselves As Necessary Cogs

In the Machine of Civilization.

The Good American must further educate himself in the skilled trades and professions, as a worker and as a homemaker, for "what one person does affects the whole, and every man is a constant example to his fellows." He knows he is a necessary cog in the machine of civilization and he plays his part for the present and the future.

James Holt, senior student in industrial arts, has already sanded his project and is shown putting the finishing touches on a handsome coffee table. Surrounding him are various tools of his trade; the brush and shellac can show a manual dexterity acquired as a four-year student in woodworking.

In sewing class Janet Hood learns to use the buttonhole attachment on a sewing machine. That famous laborsaver is a first aid to every busy housewife. Maxine Hatch, Fay Bamford, and Carol Hubbard (at right) are practicing a lesson: learning to wash and block a sweater in the proper way. Soap powder, pins, and the sweater are the props for this project lesson in household management.

Supervising School Committee, Mr. Henry Fournier, Dr. Charles Eastman, Mr. Charles Alvino, and Superintendent of Schools, Clyde L. Mann.

To destroy the Western tradition of independent thought it is not necessary to burn the books. All we have to do is to leave them unread for a couple of generations.

MR. STEPHEN A. GRIFFIN, principal at L.F.H.S. for nineteen years, superintendent of Union 130 for seven years, resigned last June due to ill health. Perhaps a Livermore Falls Trust Company column written in The Advertiser best expressed the feeling of townspeople, "From comment along the street, it is evident that many other townspeople are thinking of that retired Superintendent whose effective administration is best shown in the remarkable record made by graduates of our local schools in institutions of higher learning. Yet the man along the street is thinking of that Superintendent in much more personal terms; thinking of his quiet wisdom and kindly humor, thinking of his uncomplaining courage when illness made the going tough; thinking most of all of his constant, unselfish concern for the welfare of others."

SUPT. CLYDE L. MANN is a former editor of the Livermore Falls Advertiser, a graduate of L.F.H.S., Class of 1920, and a graduate of Colby College. He has had teaching experience in the schools of Florida and Maine coming here from Dixfield where he had served as principal. He was a member of the Maine Principals' Association, and former member of the Educational Policies committee of that organization. Mr. Mann was principal at L.F.H.S. for five years. He introduced the Washington Trip for seniors and the Student Council as new school activities.

MR. DANIEL ALVINO, who served as principal at L.F.H.S. from September '53 until February '54, is also a graduate of L.F.H.S., Class of '27. He is a graduate of Fordham University and came to L.F.H.S. after teaching in high schools in Maine, Vermont and Massachusetts. Mr. Alvino resigned to accept a position as principal at Biddeford High School. Before leaving for his new post Mr. Alvino was given a party and gift by his office girls and Kaydettes (a group he organized at L.F.H.S.); a gift was also presented by the faculty at a "coffee party" on his last day at school.

MR. ALTON BLACK, a graduate of Dartmouth College, was selected to replace Mr. Alvino. For ten years he had been principal at West Paris High School. While there he organized a County Public Speaking League for small schools and was especially active in the public speaking and dramatic fields. Mr. Black also organized at his school such recreational groups as a rifle club, cross-country team, badminton team, ping-pong and boxing. At L.F.H.S. Principal Black teaches Public Speaking and Problems of Democracy, is Supervisor of School Activities, Student Council Adviser, Senior Class Washington Trip Adviser and Guidance Director.

We Will Help Others to Further the Good of All;

Both Boys' and Girls' State nominations are made by the L.F.H.S. faculty, and final choices from eight candidates are made by the American Legion and its Women's Auxiliary. In 1953 Ruth Whitney was named as a Girls' State delegate. After being chosen for the U.N. Pilgrimage, she resigned and Doris Putnam replaced her as a delegate. Three girls are nominated as D.A.R. candidates by the Senior Class and members of the faculty choose the delegate.

You at this moment have the honor to belong to a generation whose lips are touched by fire . . . The human race now passes thru one of its great crises. New ideas, new issues — a new call for men to carry on the work of righteousness, of charity, of courage, of patience, and of loyalty — all these things have come and are daily coming to you.

When you are old . . . however memory brings back this moment to your minds, let it be able to say to you: That was a great moment. . . . This world in its crisis called for volunteers, for men of faith in life, of patience in service, of charity, and of insight. I responded to the call however I could. I studied, I labored, unsparingly and hopefully, to be worthy of my generation.

Classrooms

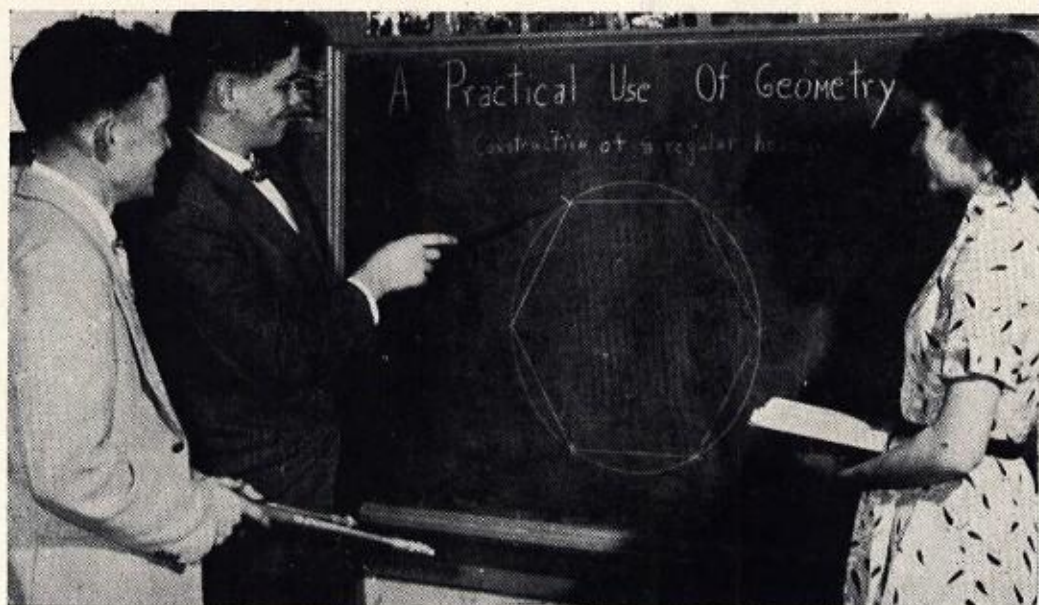

"LIVES OF GREAT MEN all remind us we can make our lives sublime" were words of a great Maine poet. Inspiring examples of great leadership are studied in American History, furnishing guidance to the student and perspective for today's problems. Perhaps an interest in the lives of others is human, since man alone of all living things is able to dream, to think, to invent, to create. While reading the Gettysburg Address, Rae Brown may think, "Abe talked about running a country as if it were something you could do. It was just a matter of people getting along", or "The great use of a life is to spend it for something that outlasts it."

An Abundance of Great and Inspired Leaders

Richard Mercier indicates the compasses needed for such construction.

Frequently students in Freshman Algebra do a board demonstration of problems, while the class members serve as critics. Students gain more poise before classmates and learn better to express themselves.

After discussing a modern political problem, the distribution of wealth among our people, a Sociology class turns to income tax study and discovers that a graduated income tax serves to equalize taxation and is based on the thesis that the greater the income the more tax a man can afford to pay. Do you really want to sharpen your shopping? Seriously, we mean? Shopping is basically information-getting. After studying a house under construction on Park Street, Consumer Economics students are pondering such questions as: Are the surrounding streets well paved? Are the neighbors desirable people? What of the materials used in the construction? Does the house have roomy clothes closets? Future home owners, Marie Tardif, Marilyn Conant, Maynard Veinotte and Ronald Newcomb are satisfied with the plumbing, heating, and wiring systems in this new residence.

The Kaydettes

Soon after school began, thirty girls met with Mr. Alvino to discuss the possibility of organizing a girls' drill team. Several problems arose — among them, what shall we name our drill team? After much consideration, the girls decided on the name, "Kaydettes". The uniform was made from a basically simple military design. Flashy green cross straps and citation cords were then added. For a few weeks the drill team practiced.

Marching to the rhythm furnished by a small volunteer drum corps; then, with the assistance of Mrs. Janet Lucarelli, they began to learn simple twirling routines. Left, right? Right, left? A few just couldn't tell which foot came first. Continual practice soon rectified this trouble. Finally, the Kaydettes were ready for their first appearance, and they performed at various basketball and football games during the season.

The Banner, 1954

Since early December the Banner Staff of Editor and Associates has followed a close-packed schedule of yearbook activities. Typing the business ad sheets, selling local ads, making ad trips to favorite out-of-town customers, planning the photography schedule, keeping Loring Studio photographer busy with the subject sheets, working out picture poses and props, writing copy, checking engraver's invoices, keeping up with the dizzy routine of printer's dummy, proof reading, headline choice — all these tasks fell to the lot of a large and capable staff that undertook to carry through the Good American Edition in a "banner" way.

Our ad salesmen say, "An interesting and unforgettable experience! I spoke well of the product we were selling and was pleased when businessmen showed surprise at our circulation of eight hundred copies", "Meeting the adult business world was fine training. We learned the value of good manners, which gave customers a fine idea of our home and school training", "I learned to stall a refusal by saying, 'Think it over. I'll be back later,'" "I learned poise and self-confidence very fast."

F. H. A.

As a part of the program of home economics in the schools of our nation, Future Homemakers of America offers many opportunities for the development of student initiative in planning and carrying out activities related to homemaking and general good citizenship.

The Future Homemakers of America brings together students and their advisers in the State to plan better home and family living. F.H.A. provides opportunities to share in solving problems important to home life. It sponsors group projects, local, state and national in scope; it increases opportunities for the development of leadership, and for the intelligent participation so much needed in a democratic society.

Under the leadership of the F.H.A. adviser at L.F.H.S., Mrs. Phyllis Ambrose, the Livermore Falls chapter has been busy with many work projects. For instance, successful public food sales were carried on to pay for the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet. Many students are working on Junior Homemaker and Chapter Degrees, which are always awarded at this banquet.

A World Christmas Festival Box was packed and sent to Korea. This year the girls made fudge and other candies, sending them to the veterans in Togus. Cloth was collected for the cancer drive. Members of the F.H.A. get a great thrill from their unselfish interests and keep busy "doing for others" as all good Americans should do.

Good Works In F. H. A.

Once a month, at the suggestion of Mr. Charles W. Strong, Chief of Special Services at the Veterans Hospital, our busy-beaver F.H.A. members have sent candy to Togus to be distributed to various wards of veterans during recreational hours.

Worthy Aims of Our Club Life Are to Overcome

A group of L.F.H.S. juniors and seniors left the Falls on a Saturday morning — general objectives: New York and Washington. First, stopping in New York, the group made a tour of the N.B.C. studios and the observation roof of the R.C.A. building. Next morning, leaving for Washington, D. C., they followed a crowded itinerary: Mount Vernon, Washington Monument, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, the F.B.I., Bureau of Printing and Engraving Buildings, as well as the Capitol, Senate Office Building, Congressional Library, Supreme Court Building, and the Lincoln Museum (the famed Ford Theater). Forays-by-bus from Washington took travel-weary but still enthusiastic tourists to the Blue Ridge Mountains, the Shenandoah Valley, the Skyline Caverns, the Gettysburg battlefield. En route to New York, our students rode to Valley Forge, stopping at the Washington Headquarters Building. Once again in New York they saw the Perry Como T.V. show, Radio City Music Hall, and "The King and I," that lovely musical at the Majestic Theatre. Snatching lunches on the run, cat-naps when possible, our tourists had, in a brief time, viewed the nation's capital, its largest city, and many scenic and historic sites. With typical American love of "going places", L.F.H.S. students had savored the joys and tribulations of all travelers.

Maine's Senator Margaret Chase Smith, wrote about the 1953 high schoolers, "These Washington trips for the students are most worthwhile, for they give them a first-hand contact with their nation's government and the people who run their government. The things they read about in their newspapers and textbooks take on real flesh-and-blood meaning. I get a thrill out of having the Maine high school students come down and visit me in my office. The fresh outlook and eager alertness of these young citizens and future leaders of our country give me a lift at times when I may be a bit tired and discouraged over what I see some of the older people doing. It is a stimulant to see the manner in which these youngsters appreciate and believe in their country."

The May Prom

The night of May 15, 1953, marked THE EVENT, the Junior Prom. Preparations were started, naturally, months in advance: an orchestra was hired; an instructor procured who would give the fine points of ballroom dancing; refreshments, decoration, tickets, and checking room problems were worked out.

Finally we heard, "It's a date!" "What time shall I pick you up?" "What's the curfew hour?" "What flowers do you prefer?" Such conversation is usual at L.F.H.S. two weeks before the Prom.

That Work and Play Are the Team That Help Youth

Inspecting the shelves is a routine duty of the girls who serve as librarians. Joyce Bamford discovers a book misplaced on the fiction shelves.

The Library

In the recently redecorated library the student assistants enjoy the surveying and the frequent dusting of the shelves, as well as other listed duties. June inventory ought to be a pleasure, because the shelves are kept so clean and attractively labelled. The work of the librarians isn't wholly aiding students who are looking up a reference, although they do have to answer many queries, such as, "Where can I find a map of Eire?" "How long may I keep this National Geographic Magazine?". The librarian can also state that information concerning Nathan Hale can be found on the Biography shelf as well as in the encyclopedias. The librarian must sometimes explain patiently that a library permit must FIRST be signed by the class teacher who gives the assignment before the study-hall teacher fills in the "hour and minute" data. This ensures a concrete assignment, and enables study-hall teacher to keep track of student whereabouts.

Keeping the lending tray in order and learning to open properly the new books are among the duties of the librarians that aid so much in keeping the library in order. Incidentally, the new set of Compton's Encyclopedias gives much "up to the minute" information lacking in the sets purchased a few years ago.

In spite of these tasks the librarians have time to enjoy such educational facilities as the magazines, encyclopedias, newspapers, and vocational aids.

Commercial Club

The Commercial Club of L.F.H.S. is one of the busiest and most active clubs in the school, and it is as well-known to the public as it is to students. It holds its meetings every Friday during the year at which time all methods of raising funds and the use of club earnings are discussed and decided upon.

Each year at Christmas time the members of the club donate food, clothing, and toys to a needy family. Boxes are packed with these gifts and sent to the family.

Among its activities the club sells soda, candy, coffee, and hot dogs to the public at football games from a refreshment booth which was built for the club on school grounds. The club also sells candy during the noon recess and its funds are used toward the purchase of new equipment.

Through the efforts of the club the Commercial Department has been made one of the most modern in the state. The desks in the typing room are adjustable to each student's height, while all chairs — the new posture type — are adjustable.

All new equipment has been purchased by the school department with the financial assistance of the club: a new Gestetner Duplicating Machine, a mimeoscope, an electric Marchant Calculator, a new record player to be used to help students increase their dictation speed, and new fluorescent lighting for the typing and bookkeeping rooms.

COMMERCIAL CLUB PROJECTS. Familiar to all noontime lunch students is the booth at the entrance to the typing room. Juliette St. Pierre and Lenora White are in charge of the club's chip and candy sales. The corn-popping machine recently purchased by the club furnishes a bumper crop of buttered corn for nibbling fans at the autumn football and indoor basketball events. The day of the game Viviane Grondin, Billy Wheeler, and Gladys Storer are getting the corn ready during activity period.

The Andies Bulletin

During the first week of each month a varied assortment of sounds and motions can be heard coming from Mrs. Brown's typing room. Hurry! Bustle! Conferences with the editor go on at a fast pace. Undoubtedly the current issue of the Andies Bulletin is in preparation, and directions are being given the mimeoscope worker.

Just to inform the student public of procedures followed before the Bulletin appears in home rooms to be exchanged for the customary dime, here's a list of various steps that the harried editor must take. First of all — and hardest — is the dogging of the assisting editors for monthly copy. Then the typists get busy. Reading by the principal indicates approval of copy, and is a necessary step. Typing and stenciling, proof reading, running the many pages off the mimeograph, establishing the assembly line to collect the pages before the final stapling — all these are necessary phases of staff work before the copies are distributed to the home rooms.

Important school events, editorials, principal's column, literary, athletic and humor sections, as well as special features, are included in this monthly paper issued by the Commercial Club.

Illustrator of Andies Bulletin, Gladys Storer is at work at the mimeoscope.

Editor of Andies Bulletin, Viviane Grondin, instructs Marlene Simoneau concerning the method of setting up a special column on the stencil. Exchanges from local schools are prominently displayed in the background.

The Cheerleaders

Co-operation! Co-ordination! Dependability! Voice! Scholastic standing! Do you have all these? Maybe you are qualified to be a cheerleader.

Six girls, two from each of the three upper classes, develop the words and routines of the cheers, considering good sportsmanship a paramount requirement, as well as the probable popularity of the innovations. All new cheers must be approved by their adviser, Mrs. Brown.

New uniforms were purchased this year. White flannel jackets, piped with green, and dark green pleated skirts made a favorable impression on spectators at the games. The emblem attached to the jacket pocket makes a very striking contrast with the white background. "Knowledge is power", that fine school motto, is printed on the jacket emblems.

Almost daily practice is the first rule of the cheerleaders. Some schools, less exacting, are amazed at the ironclad rule, "no gum-chewing before the public". Attention to detail has created a group of leaders, skilled in developing fine school spirit at athletic contests.

The Dramatic Club

Lights! On Stage! Curtain! These are familiar sounds when the Dramatic Club is getting a short play or skit ready for production at its Friday activity meeting. This year club members initiated an entirely new idea. Three members of the club selected, cast and directed a Christmas play, which they presented to the student body. Ruth Whitney, Corilla Ouellette, and Ellen Cummings were the directors and were faced with such problems as staging, rehearsals, collecting props, getting the cast to memorize lines and learn their cues. That oft-repeated question, "Will we ever be ready?", was accompanied by fun and excitement. The answer was final satisfaction: the assembly, a success.

In past years the club members have attended college plays at Bates and Bowdoin Colleges to supplement their club interests, and to get new ideas on production techniques. In June the club charts a bus for the Lakewood Summer Theater and attends the first production of the season at that theater.

But Students

MAKE-UP COMMITTEE for school play applies finishing touches to the actors. Viviane Grondin and Marlene Simoneau are getting Richard Poland and Marilyn Conant ready for the bright footlights. Below, Liz is entertaining Dallas and Casey with her imitation of the shop girl. Liz is definitely showing already one of the less lovely sides of sorority life.

Take Care of My Little Girl

While the make-up committee hurriedly applied the last touches, "curtain time" was drawing nearer and nearer. Backstage, electricians, stagehands, and actors were scurrying around hunting for the prompter's copy. Eureka! Located at last!

Finally, houselights dimmed. An expectant hush fell over the audience. Green velvet curtains slowly parted, and the delightful comedy, Take Care of My Little Girl, was "on stage".

The scene is set in the living room of the Queens' Sorority House. A tea party is being given by the Queens for the eager young girls who have exalted expectations of joining the sisterhood. Such interesting characters! Liz, the sweet and lovely heroine who sincerely wants to belong to Queens, her mother's sorority, as she truly believes it will make her the happiest girl in the world there.

INITIATION during "hell week". Thelma (Marla Mann) is forced to bow to upperclassmen at risk of losing the pie she has been told to convey in the complicated manner approved by the sorority. Liz stands by laughing, while Casey views the scene more pessimistically. In right panel, Liz tells Joe that she's perfectly capable of handling the smooth fraternity lad, known as "lover boy".

However, Liz soon discovers that beneath the smooth facade of sorority life, there is an undercurrent of hateful snobbery, injustice, and intolerance.

The problem child of the group is Casey. With her shattering guffaw (definitely un-Queenly) she directs her wisecracks at Dallas, the beauty of the sorority. Chad, otherwise known as lover boy, tries to steal the fair Liz's heart away. But Joe, young and ambitious, wins in the end.

The curtain goes down with an eerie sound effect, a guffaw from Casey at Liz's discovery that she really prefers dorm life; she doesn't belong with the Queens. So the play closes.

The audience enjoyed this sorority problem play, realizing that much of the tinsel and sham of certain phases of the sisterhood had been shatteringly revealed.

Ticket Sellers At L. F. H. S.

On a typically raw November day, our ticket sellers, bundled in scarves, kerchiefs, and snow boots are rushing frenziedly about to clear traffic of the swirling cars and crowds. For who would be so unsportsmanlike as to miss the Armistice Day football game at L.F.H.S.?

Such is the persistence of our "money-changers" up on The Hill! In all types of weather they have to be "on the spot", always smiling, and, if time permits, "passing the time of day."

Many tedious hours are spent counting change, reserving seats for the Spring Concert, or typing the tickets. However, all this must be an attractive activity since the ticket staff is large, and members seem to enjoy an opportunity to meet the public.

At the reserved seat board, Marline Parker and Gail Masterman, ticket committee, with Richard Cote, head usher, show the co-ordination that must needs be practiced between ticket and seating arrangements in order to keep the situation from a jumble at a school event.

Aeronautics Club

In 1952, the Aeronautics Club at L.F.H.S. began its flight into the "wild blue yonder", and today they are still "flying high". This organization is a sequel to the credit course taught at L.F.H.S. during World War II.

Here students "take off" every Friday morning during Activity Period into a new world of applied science. Among the many interesting subjects discussed are aerodynamics, meteorology, and navigation.

After a few excursions into reading and discussion projects they feel that they have slightly "broken the barriers" of some of the fundamentals of a most modern science.

The club members study the "heart of the airplane", a unit consisting of magneto, timer, and distributor; they learn about the voice-modulated radio. Globes and maps, it is found, are indispensable in the study of navigation, since it is the duty of the navigator to know his geographic position at all times.

Aeronautics Club in Friday Activity Period interests itself in learning the Morse code. Ronald Newcomb, William Binnette, and James Dyke are practicing with dry cells and the single stroke bell which set off the electric impulses that click out the dit or dah of the code.

Every Monday morning instruments tune up to begin practice for the Sandy-Andy Festival. Practicing long hours "Cavalier Overture," "Festival March," "Stephen Foster Medley," and "Valse Moderne" is a "must" for the May concert.

Strike Up The Band! The auditorium is more than filled with the blare of trumpets, the throb of drums and the shrill, sweet piping of flutes!

The Majorettes

The tuning up of the band every Monday night is the cue for the majorettes to start their weekly practice. What a feverish session of baton twirling and high stepping drills! Each girl works to get the routine down "pat" for the next game.

At a game the excitement and noise of the crowd adds to the tenseness of the already nervous majorettes. Then the big moment arrives! When the field parade starts, the student and adult audience notice the new attractive uniforms, as well as the new twirling and march routines.

The spring season brings drill work on the athletic field. Counter marching, fancy steps, and original formations are practiced for the Western Maine Tournament.

Five year old Sally Berry, majorette mascot, rouses the crowd's enthusiasm as she marches proudly beside the drill captain. Sally's uniform is somewhat like that of the majorettes in the school green and white colors, of course.

The majorettes perform at the Sandy Andy Festival, at several basketball and football games, at all school parade events, team victories, as well as the local Memorial Day Parade.

Track Revival, 1953

Under the coaching of Mr. Puiia, the squad learned positions, form, and how to run. Every afternoon practice began at 3:15. Starting from the gym the boys ran cross-country, a distance of about one and a half miles. On return from cross-country wind-sprints were in order as well as the 50-yard and 100-yard dashes.

To keep in training the group ran around the field from four to eight times daily; in a few weeks the squad was in fairly good condition.

On May 15, 1953, the L.F.H.S. team took part in a triangular track meet at Wilton, competing against Mexico and Wilton. The entire team participated in the runs, and acquired some helpful experience. Andy Barclay took the shot-put, throwing the shot 37 feet. Really a very fine sport, track should become more popular here in Livermore Falls High School because it develops stamina and a determined spirit.

Baseball — 1953

In the opening game of the season the Andies downed the Jay Tigers, 5 to 4. Walton went the distance on the mound for the Andies. Laverdiere was the heavy sticker for the Andies with a home run and a single in three trips to the plate.

The Andies were edged out, 3 to 2, by Wilton in what was a pitchers' duel all the way. The Andies blasted two Farmington pitchers for 15 runs and easily trimmed the Greyhounds, 15 to 7. Walton pitched his second victory of the season.

In the second game with Jay, the Tigers blasted away at the Andies' pitchers for 9 runs, ending on top, 9 to 2. Oakes starred for Jay.

Although the Andies led all the way until the seventh, Farmington came up with 5 big runs to beat the Green and White, 7 to 3.

Wilton blasted out 4 runs in the first inning, going on to win 4 to 0. Bucky Buchanan pitched a perfect game, allowing no runs, no hits, no walks; no errors were committed behind him. He retired 21 men in order in the seven inning game.

The Andies traveled to Leavitt, but lost a close 4 to 3 game. Leavitt scored the winning run in the ninth inning. Bean did well on the mound for the Andies.

In the opening game of the State Principals' Association Tournament the Andies were bumped off by Bridgton, 18 to 4. Norman Nemi hit a home run for the Andies, but in a losing cause.

Football — 1953

The 1953 season spelled murder for the Andies at home and away. The team came through with an 0-7-1 record.

As an opener, Lisbon High School came to Livermore Falls. The score was a deadlock 0-0.

In the Wilton game the Andies met the Eagles at Colby Field. For two periods L.F. held the Wilton chargers. Of the final score, 34-7, Wilton chalked up 19 points in the third.

Livermore Falls travelled next to Kents Hill for their best game of the season. The boys played a wonderful second half while holding Kents Hill to one first down.

Farmington was the scene of another belting for the Andies. Although we scored first and led 7-0 for a few minutes, it was hard to hold the speedy, shifty Greyhound backs. The score, 34-7.

The Mexico "Pintoos" invaded Andies' territory with their troops at full strength. Little Joe Blanchard led the "Pintoos" to an undisputed victory over the Andies.

This game with Winthrop, was uninteresting. Both teams were in poor form.

Bridgton, a new team to L.F. proved a "power house" to the Green and White.

The Armistice Day 1953 game provided a dismal ending for the season. Trailing 13-0 at the half, the Andies were outclassed. Jay intercepted two passes which provided 14 points in a matter of minutes.

The season demonstrated the need to start building teams which might lead the way up.

Girls' Basketball, 1953-4

Early in the season the hilltop girls donned their pale green gym suits and white sneakers to report to Coach Wagner for basketball practice. The clang of locker doors and the rush of feet on the gym floor was a welcome sound to many who liked fast scrimmage and frequent play. The first practice sessions consisted mainly of calisthenics to get the girls "in condition."

Intramural competition was emphasized this year as the squad divided up into three teams. Each team had a captain and chose such titles as Beaulieu's Bombshells, Harlow's Hotshots, and Brown's Spitballs. These intramural groups competed for honors.

The Bombshells "racked up the points" to take the Hotshots and Spitballs by storm. The teams scrimmaged daily and a chart was kept of the schedules, scoring, and winners.

Aside from intramural activities, the Andiettes played their regular seasonal games with other schools. The "starting lineup" was composed of Lorine Beaulieu (Captain), Diane Harlow, Anne Brown, Frances Darey, Marilyn Demont and Dianne Hamilton. Many of the subs including Ellen Cummings, Frances Kowalzyk, Marie Black, Jackie Tessier, and Sally Anderson saw plenty of action on the floor and around the hoop.

Boys' Basketball, 1953-4

As in the past two years the L.F.H.S. hoopmen started off with "green" candidates. However, at the first showing, a "Round Robin" pre-season meeting with Jay, Farmington and Wilton, the Andies took next-to-top honors. The Green and White edgers kicked up their heels in the first game of the season, as they romped past a Leavitt Institute quintet by a wide margin.

The next two games went into the red column as Jay squeezed out a three-point win, and an experienced and tall South Paris club downed the L.F.H.S. boys. Sparks flew as Coach Puiia whipped the home team into shape to thrash Winthrop and Leavitt in successive games on the home court. The Andies came from behind in the first half to glide past the Lisbon Falls courtmen.

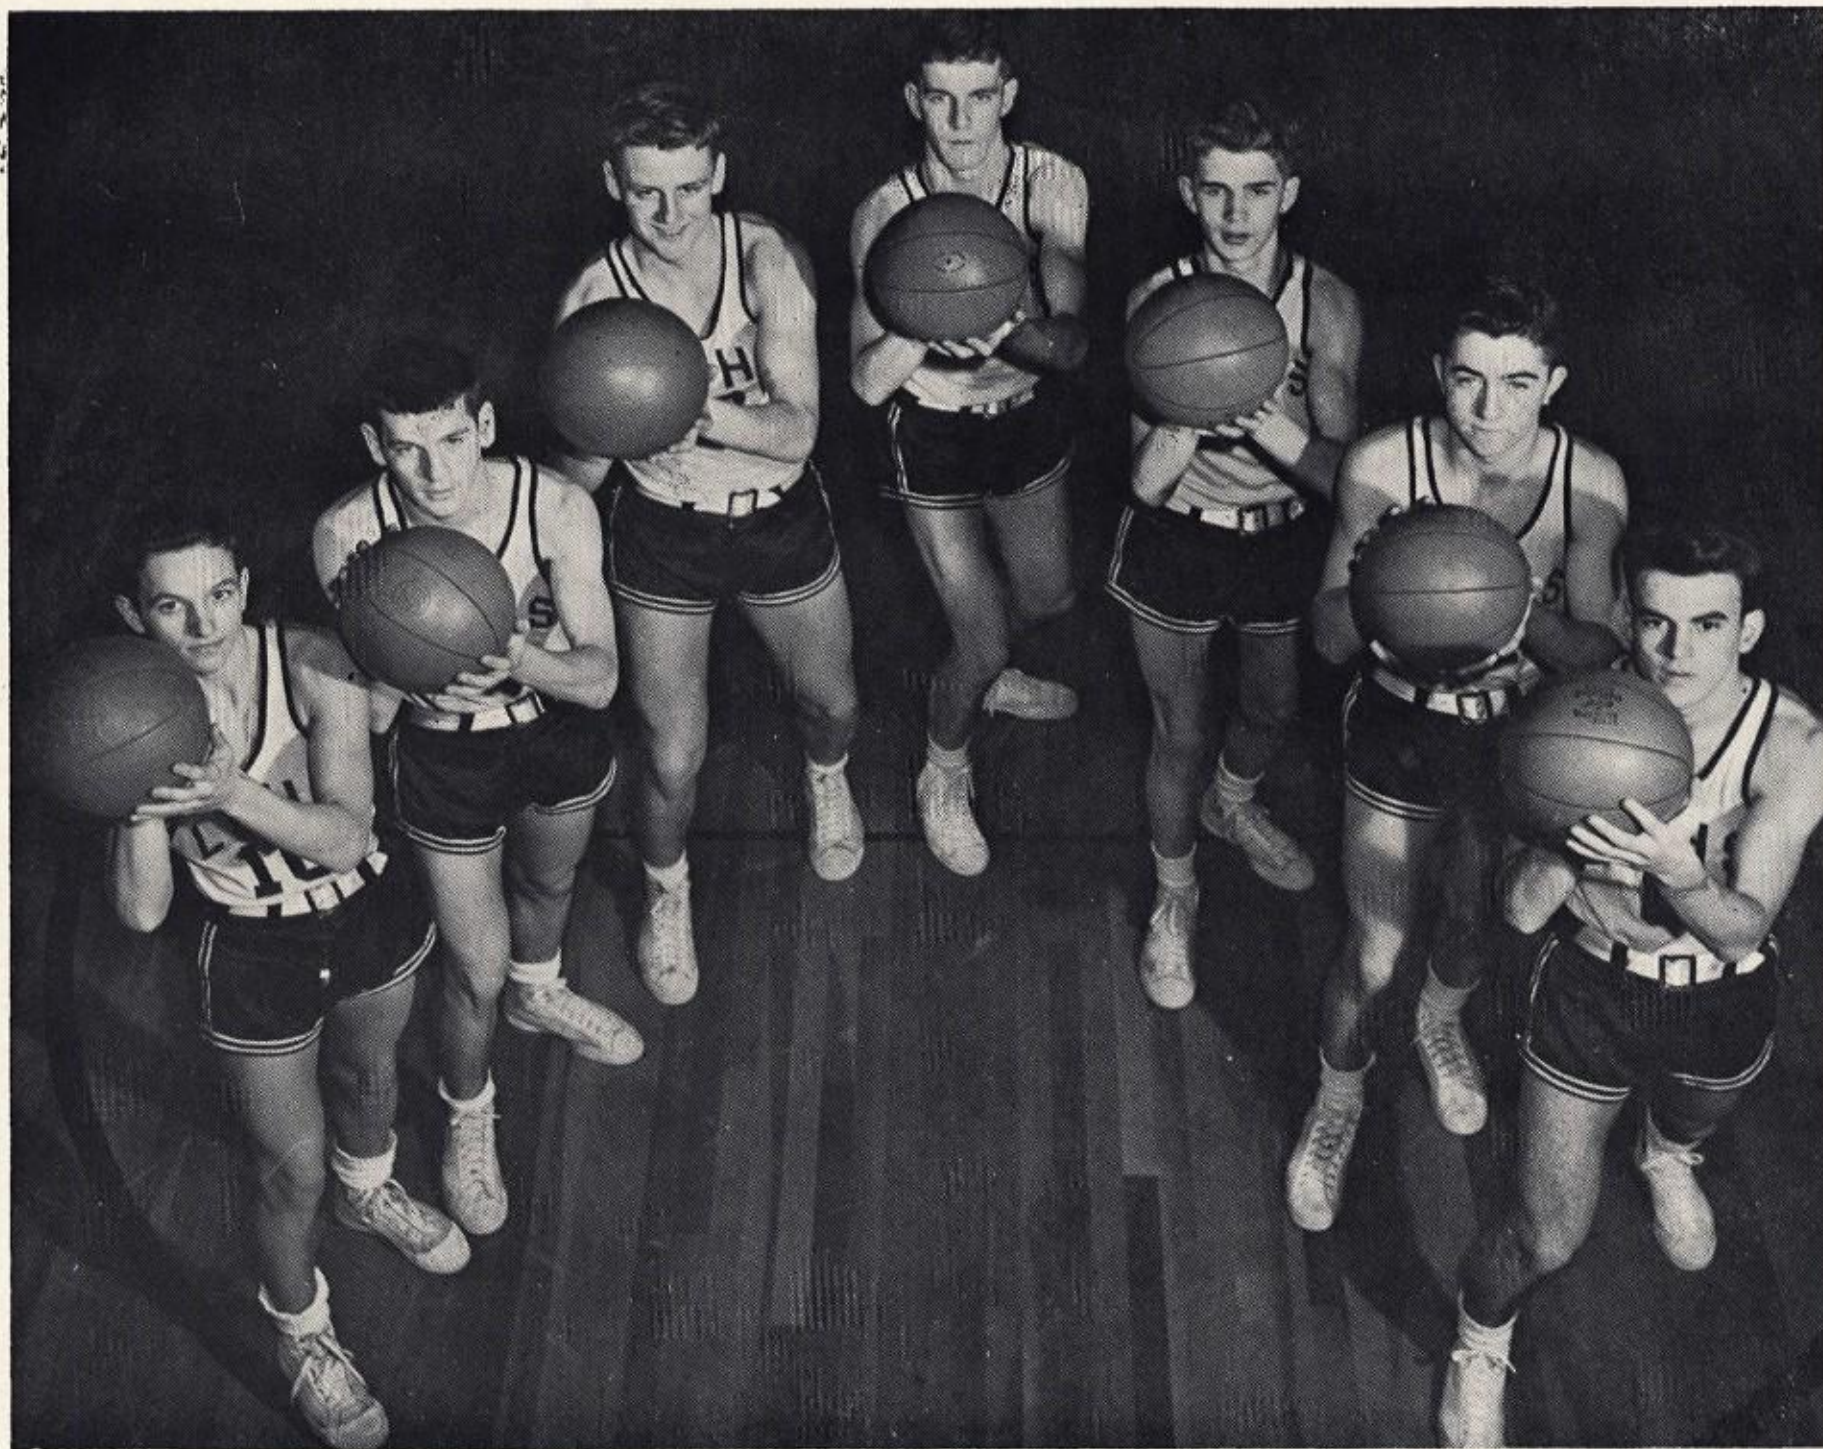

A small crowd saw the Green and White slowly creep past Boothbay Harbor and hold a considerable lead to the final buzzer. Another game with Jay was a repetition of the first, with the Tigers teetering on top. Farmington went down under the fine shooting of the Andies in a home game. Wilton Academy Eagles managed to fight off a third quarter L.F. rally to roll over the Green and White.

The next two contests were upsets on a divided basis, as Winthrop squeaked by the Andies with a one-point lead and the home team jumped a strong Mexico quintet, due to the fine shooting of Harry Maxwell and his teammates. Lisbon fell behind, beginning with the opening whistle. L.F. cagers had no trouble here. With Larry Bryant and Harry Maxwell missing because of sickness, the Andies held a strong Gould Academy club to a tie until the final quarter, when the handicapped Green and White lost the race.

On opening night of the Regional Tournament the locals managed to stay out in front of Farmington until the final minutes of the last quarter when the Greyhounds made a strong bid and went out ahead to stay. This upset ended the season for the Andies. When playing at their best, the Andies always looked good, but many games found the L.F. cagers in a slump.
